OF SPORT WORLDCoffey Had a Reason All His Own for Knocking Out
Al Reich.

By Vincent Treanor.

ALL kinds of stories have been told and written about Jim Coffey, the popular Irish fighter, but one in connection with his recent knockout of Al Reich has never found its way into print. Jim had come back to his corner after his husky young opponent counted out. Billy Gibson, his manager, had jumped up to the floor of the ring and was standing there with hand extended in congratulation. "Shake, Jim, I know you could do it," said Billy.

Grappling Gibson's hand, Coffey shook it vigorously.

"William," he said, "I'm gladder I won for Mike's sake than my own." "Mike? What Mike, who's Mike?" asked Gibson perplexed.

"Why, Mike's my old conductor," answered Coffey. "Sure he bet $1,000, every cent he has in the world, on me to win by a knockout, and he took even money. I had to win for Mike. Sure the thought of his $1,000 was never out of my mind from the start."

Gibson agreed that Coffey had the right idea about things, and said: "Well, Jim, shake again for Mike's sake."

"Thanks, William," and Coffey stepped out of the ring and ran to his dressing room. Coffey always calls Gibson William.

COFFEY is being hounded by all kinds of heavyweights now. Everybody wants to fight him because it has been shown that fighting Coffey is profitable business. Coffey draws bigger houses than any of them. Billy Gibson, however, has his own ideas about whom the big fellow will meet. "Gib" wants Willard, of course, but Coffey won't let him wait for him. Both Gibson and Coffey agree that Big Jess is entitled to a year's lay-off in which to gather in the fruits of victory, but Jim will jump at the chance to meet the champion.

Gibson had planned a theatrical tour for Coffey, but isn't so enthusiastic about it now. Gibson is thinking that stage work will do Coffey more harm than good, although he has many out of town theatrical offers for him, he is likely to pass them up.

AFTER Regret made turf history by winning the Kentucky Derby, her trainer, Jimmy Rowe, remarked that she was the second best horse he ever trained. He refused to say which was the best.

We don't pretend to know just which was the best of the many great horses Rowe has trained, but we will make a guess that it was Colin, the greatest son of Comstock. A good horse is one for which no excuses must be made, and none ever had to be made for Colin. Off in front or behind, cut off or carried wide, the finish always found Colin nodding along in front.

We hope Regret will prove as good a horse as Colin, judging by her Derby performance, she is likely to be the queen of the three-year-old division this season. Anyhow, she has proved she has the number of James Butler's Fables.

PEBBLES last year was almost a champion until he met Regret. In that first meeting Pebbles got a bad break—in fact, was almost left. He overcame this handicap in marvellous fashion and, although Regret won, Pebbles seemed to be running over her at the end. This left a doubt of Regret's superiority, which wasn't removed until they met again. This time Pebbles was away badly again, but Regret had none the better of the racing luck. She was in a jam throughout until the stretch was reached, but then she came on, and won like a champion, while Pebbles trailed.

JIMMY CLABBY and George Chip start a middleweight elimination contest Wednesday night, which will result in the appearance of the great and only Mike Gibbons in a local arena. In Clabby and Chip the fans will see the direct opposite in fighters. Chip is the strong, husky type of puncher who depends more on his wallop than on any scientific movements. Clabby is of the clever variety, with all the tricks of the trade at his glove tips and a punch that gets its power more from the scientific method of its delivery rather than from the strength of his arms. They are likely to furnish an interesting fight argument and incidentally furnish an opponent for the wizard Gibbons.

THE Yanks start into the wild and woolly after to-day's game and they take with them the best wishes of the local fans. The Bill Donovan regime is already popular, although the season is comparatively young. Donovan has done what Frank Chance couldn't do, and practically the same material, not because he has any greater managerial ability, but because he is more human. Donovan isn't entirely a boss.

18-YEAR-OLD PITCHER
SCORES NO-HIT VICTORY.

STAMFORD, Conn., May 10.—Harry Fritz, pitcher of the Stamford semi-professional team, pitched a no-hit game yesterday, beating Highwood A. C. of New Haven, 11 to 0.

Thirty batters faced Fritz. Two got bases on balls and one reached first on a wild throw. Fritz is a left hander and is eighteen years old.

WILL THE YANKS DO AS WELL OUT WEST?

Red Sox Were Tricked
Into Believing Yankees
Couldn't Hit Southpaws

Donovan Had Left Hander
Working With Team Two Hours Every Day and Was Well Prepared to Face Boston's Best Talent.

By Bozeman Bulger.

BEHIND the recent slaughter of Red Sox left handers by the Yanks there is a nice little story of double-crossing, in which Bill Carrigan realizes that he has been worsted and that Bill Donovan has something else to know his shoulders except a mere knob on which to hang a hat.

Knowing the reputation of Donovan's team against southpaws, and being of the opinion that the Yanks had no left hander with whom they could practice, Carrigan opened his present series with a policy of port flingers first, last and all the time. His surprise can be imagined when one after another of these left handers were knocked out of the box, giving the Yanks two victories and a very close score in the only game lost out of five.

It appears that Donovan knew that Carrigan would figure that way, and that is why for a month he had Scout Joe Knolly scouring the woods for a left hander of his own. At the last minute the Yanks succeeded in buying Cottrell from the Braves.

"But Cottrell hasn't pitched yet!" you may say. If you think so, there is another big guess coming. Since joining the Yanks Cottrell has done more pitching to the square inch than any two men on the club.

For an hour every morning and for nearly that long in the afternoon the new left hander has done nothing but feed his peculiar delivery to his teammates. In other words, they have really seen nothing but southpaw pitching in practice since they got back from the south. When Carrigan showed up with his string they had both barrels cocked and were waiting.

By shoving out one left hander after another Carrigan played right into their hands. And, once they had started smashing out the ball not even a right hander could stem the tide. In that hitting riot Saturday afternoon the Red Sox knocked out three pitchers in one inning for a total of ten runs.

"No, I don't think it spring pep or plain horseshoe luck," said Carrigan last night. "Those birds simply crossed us, that's all. But we'll get 'em."

There should be no occasion for complaint this time at the usual orthodox Monday crowd that watches a ball game as a seasonal first night. To-day there will be a whoop with every play, and the regulars can keep quiet or not, just as they please.

Col. Ruppert and Capt. Huston have sent 7,000 invitations to the sailors of the fleet now in the harbor, and, according to conservative estimates of the fleet officers, the number present will be 7,000.

The entire upper part of the grand stand, starting 10,000, has been reserved for the sailors, and they will be passed in through a special gate on the Eighth Avenue side. No tickets will be demanded, and the sailors can help themselves. Not only that, but they can bring their sisters, mothers or sweethearts with them.

All the sailors who come from the neighborhood of Boston will be given the preference in the matter of shore leave, as they will be particularly interested in the Red Sox.

A similar invitation will be extended by the Giants to-morrow, and on that occasion the sailors from around Cincinnati and the Middle West will get a chance to yell for the Cincinnati Reds.

To-day's game concludes the home-stay of the Yanks and they will leave for their first swing around the Western circuit to-night. The first stop will be Cleveland. Having won twice as many games as they have lost the Yanks are in better shape for a long trip than at any time within the last ten years. If they find the Western pitchers no worse than those in the East they ought to win a majority of their games—a feat most rare in the past.

By winning Saturday Ray Fisher topped his fifth straight victory and is now the leading pitcher of the American League. Donovan has shown excellent judgment in giving Fisher plenty of rest between games. At the same time he is careful to see that these rest periods are of exactly the same duration.

The Red Sox exhibited a young pitcher Saturday who appears to have stolen Jack Warhop's stuff. Mr. May has an underhand delivery that made fans wonder if there hadn't been some mistake in the announcement. They thought him Warhop in a Red Sox uniform. Yes, and May appears to have had just as much luck as Jack has been experiencing since the season began.

California Invites Winning
Crews to Compete on Coast

THE winner of the Yale-Harvard boat race and the successful crew in the Poughkeepsie regatta have been invited to compete in championship event on the Coast in July. But it appears very doubtful at this time if the invitation can be accepted. To send the winners to the Coast would be an act of appreciation on part of the Eastern college. For four years California has sent a crew to the Poughkeepsie regatta and announcement was made yesterday that Leland Stanford will be here this year. It is a general feeling among oarsmen in the East that at least one of the winning crews should be sent West. There would be some excuse for not sending the winner at Poughkeepsie if only for financial reasons, but either Harvard or Yale could provide funds enough to finance the trip to the West. Hope of sending the crews has not yet been abandoned. It is believed by many that the officials of the exposition may be induced to subsidize part of the expenses of sending at least one Eastern college crew to California.

Frederick C. Baxx of the West Side Club defeated Walter Hall yesterday in the Bronx singles championship at the Bedford Park Club. The match was fought at a desperate pace for more than two hours, as it began at noon and continued until after 2 o'clock. Hall worked his own shots prettily when he got the chance. Baxx, however, always persistently advanced to the net, scoring the first sensational upset of the season by winning at 2-6, 6-4, 10-8. Fred Baxx advanced to the third round as he was drawn against his brother, Ralph L. Baxx, for his next match and the latter, as is customary with brothers, defaulted to him.

England May Not Have
Golfer in Open Tourney

Vardon and Ray Have Already Abandoned Trip and Braid and Duncan Also Likely to Withdraw Because of Lusitania Disaster.

THERE had been a bad invasion of English golf champions promised for the United States Open tournament at Baltusrol next month. Harry Vardon, Edward Ray, James Braid and George Duncan, a quartet of the greatest living British golfers, had arranged to sail on the Lusitania on May 15. Then came the sinking of the giant liner by a German torpedo and the disaster threatens to ruin the chances of any Britons coming over for our championship.

Harry Vardon and Edward Ray already have cancelled their bookings and decided to remain on land, far away from the shooting distance of a German submarine. It is now feared that Braid and Duncan will follow the example of their countrymen and decide not to visit the United States this year, thus depriving the home players of the stimulus in competition they gain from a foreign entry.

The tournament season for the Harwich Country Club starts May 22 with a cross-season competition that will last sixteen weeks. The sixteen who qualify will continue at match play each succeeding week. In addition to many local events, the programme includes the following:

BAKER READY TO JOIN
ATHLETICS IF MACK
DESTROYS CONTRACT

Is Willing to Play This Season
Only and Then Quit
Big Show.

PHILADELPHIA, May 10.—"Home Run" Baker and Connie Mack have been in conference. The noted "fence breaker" is ready to rejoin the Athletics under certain conditions. He is ready to play out this season if Connie Mack will release him from his three-year contract.

Baker, after his talk with Mack Saturday night, said that the only reason he offered to join the Athletics this year and play out the season is to straighten out matters. There has been so much talk and criticism of him that he is willing to play this year if Mr. Mack will destroy the old contract, that there will not be a chance of a recurrence of the present mix-up. He added:

"It is not a case of money. The salary that my contract calls for is satisfactory to me. I do desire to get away from big baseball, as I do not care to remain away from home, as I have to do in the big leagues. I have no desire to play with any other team than the Athletics, and only consent to play one more year so that the whole matter may be straightened out. Mr. Mack may have my services whenever he desires them under the conditions I named to him to-night. I will not play this year as long as the contract exists which holds me for next season."

DORMAN GETS DRAW:
OTHER FIGHT RESULTS.

Despite the fact that Jack Dorman, the Bronx lightweight, has been fighting for a great many years, he showed on Saturday night that he is still able to battle, for he gave such a good account of himself in his fight with Eddie "Red" Butler of Kansas City at the Fairmont A. C. that he was entitled to a draw. Dorman was the aggressor in many of the rounds and managed to get in many a hard wallop on Butler. In the semi-final bout Dorman defeated Jack Scales.

The results of the star bouts at the other shows held on Saturday night are as follows:

At Broadway Sporting Club, Soldier Battlefield won from Jack Toad.

At Brown's Gymnasium, Joe Malone outpointed Young Walsh.

At Irving A. C., Jack Henkle failed to show up to box Dan "Forky" Flynn.

At Elm Park (N. Y.) A. C., Mike Mans defeated Ray Walker.

At Queensboro A. C., Kid Owens knocked out Sandy Sanderson in one round.

At Sharkey A. C., Buddy Ryan was outpointed by Eddie Kelly.
